18. TIMELINESS OF MOTION: If your judgment of conviction became final over one year ago, you must explain why the one-year statute of limitations as contained in 28 U.S.C. § 2255 does not bar your motion.* This motion may be one day over the one year limitation period. however, under the mail box rule. Movant would note that the reason the instant motion may be late by a day or days is that his timely prepared motion and memorandum of law was confiscated by the Special Investigations Staff Unit at the Institution, in that it was found in the possession of a legal clerk in the law library who the SIS placed in the segregation housing Unit under investigation for an alleged infraction of Institutional rules or regulations, which have nothing to do with movant's motion or legal documents, however, movant was advised and informed that he will not be getting his appeal papers until completion of their investigation.
- Thus, there is created a government impediment in the filing of his § 2255 motion.

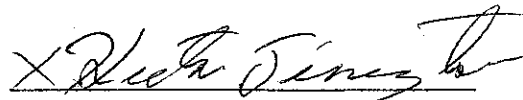

* The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 ("AEDPA") as contained in 28 U.S.C. § 2255, paragraph 6, provides in part that:

A one-year period of limitation shall apply to a motion under this section. The limitation period shall run from the latest of —

- (1) the date on which the judgment of conviction became final;
- (2) the date on which the impediment to making a motion created by governmental action in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States is removed, if the movant was prevented from making such a motion by such governmental action;
- (3) the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if that right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review; or
- (4) the date on which the facts supporting the claim or claims presented could have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence.

Therefore, movant asks that the Court grant the following relief: vacation of the Sentence and conviction.

or any other relief to which movant may be entitled.
